The Perry Family

This collection of photographs and documents spans 256 years of the Perry family. In the early years the family lived and worked around the hamlets of Pepperstock, Slip End and Caddington in Bedfordshire, England with the males usually employed as labourers and the females employed in the straw hat industry. Family members were probably illiterate during this period.

The birth of William Perry in 1869 saw the gradual emergence of middle class occupations within the family which has continued to this day. Also from this time the geographical dispersion of the family began and literacy became universal. These trends were reflections of changes taking place in society generally.

The family tree chart which accompanies this collection includes 294 individuals with the average age at:

* marriage being 26 years

* death being 68 years

* birth of first child being 30 years with the average number of children in families being 3

Andrew Perry compiled this book; the family tree chart was updated in September 2011. In September of 2008 Andrew travelled to England to meet his relatives for the first time.

For the past 250 years the Perry family has lived, worked and died in a small area to the south west of Luton, Bedfordshire, England. The small villages of Caddington, Slip End, Woodside, Pepperstock and Pepsal End have been and were the focus of their activities. Each of these villages has always been surrounded by agricultural land which was a source of work for each generation. The Perry males of the 18th and 19th century were farm laborers although James Perry in his later life worked as an assistant gardener. He and his family lived at Gibraltar Cottages which were part of the Luton Hoo Estate. It's almost certain, although not proven, that he worked in some capacity on the Estate.

On the 11 September 2008 Andrew arrived at the church at the same time as the minister Ruth Pyke and was permitted to explore the church's interior. The Straw Hat Industry Mary Byrch (1797-1863), wife of John Perry, was a straw plaiter while Elizabeth Perry (1869 -1954) was a straw hat machinist. The industry began in the area sometime at the end of the 17th century. From the 19th century straw plaiting was mainly found in rural areas while the sewing of hats was found in the towns. By 1850 a straw plaiter could earn between four and six shillings a week, while in " a large hat factory (employing between 100-500 persons) a swift, experienced sewer could earn approximately 18 shillings a week."

By the end of century straw plaiting declined and disappeared by the 1930s while "the hat industry thrived on imported plaits and mechanisation".

William Perry was a deacon at the church for many years. Andrew visited the church on 12 September 2008 and spoke to the minister Michael Thomas who said there were several old record books in the church attic. Andrew and Michael sorted through several cupboards and filing cabinets before finding a minutes book which recorded the meetings of deacons.

In Memoriam

Dover, Cornwall Assoc. Annual Meeting
Plymouth, June 1928

How great was the loss in the home group of a young soldier of Christ. A. L. Perry, B.A., B.D., of Dartmouth.

Although his parishes at the Seaside town was not long, it was long enough to cement a relationship between pastor & people which was most happy, and a cooperation in service beautiful & complete. He was a hard worker, a keen student, and a wide reader, who made everything seem to illustrate & heighten the appeal of the Gospel.
There are not a few who will never cease to bless God for the gift of such a faithful and ardent ministry. His was a brief, but a full ministry & his simple purpose was to magnify Jesus Christ.

His spiritual earnestness and deep conviction made a great impression upon all those who came under his gracious influence.

His life was unexpectedly short, and some would represent it with a broken pillar, overshadowing his tomb; yet it was not a broken life, for it was long enough to learn its essential meaning, to serve its high purpose in some degree, & to win its great triumph. Like the most beautiful flower which appears & blooms only for a while, like some of the finest fruit which falls earliest, so it is with our dear brother. He came and blossomed, & spread his sweetness & fragrance around, and then passed away like his Master, in the height of his usefulness, and the zenith of his manhood & hope, and he went triumphantly to the better life.

Margaret & John as told by Christine Chessum

"When Arthur died in 1928, the family moved back to Luton to 45 Russell Rise which was called Ridgemount (William & Elizabeth were living at no.51 Russell Rise). Granny (Mary Thompson) then took in lodgers to make ends meet. Mum (Margaret Perry) went to Luton High School until 16 and then went to Commercial School to learn book keeping and shorthand and worked in an accounts office in Luton. It is this type of work she returned to once us children (Peter, Christine, Stephen) were older. She at some point came away from the Baptist church to join the Church of England, being on the local councils involved with church and played the organ well into her 70's.

Going back in time again mum, volunteered for the Land Army in 1943 and after training went to Millow Hall Farm near Biggleswade to work. This is where she met Dad (Alfred John Chessum). She went to Moulton Agricultural College for a year and then went back to the Land Army to train the other land girls. Dad worked for the same employers all his working life as general farm worker, the farm mechanic and foreman. He eventually left when he was 70 years old. He still pops over to the farm every day and likes to keep his knowledge up to date."

Philip thinks Gwen was a "Land Girl" (is that the term?) during the war (WWII). That's how she came to meet Franz, who was working as a PoW at that time. Philip thinks Franz was from Alsatia. When Rowena and Philip visited Franz in 1992, he was still grieving for her - although he did have a new girl friend at the time!

Philip remembers Gwen as a very "jolly" sort of person.
